

American College of Cardiology Foundation/Bristol-Myers Squibb Travel Awards

Grantor: American College of Cardiology Foundation/Bristol-Myers Squibb

Closes: 10/14/2010

Maximum: $1,250.00

American College of Cardiology Foundation/Bristol-Myers Squibb Travel Awards

Description: Twenty applicants will be awarded travel expenses to attend ACC.11. Judging is based on the applicant's major involvement in research activities leading to presentations and publications during cardiovascular-related subspecialty training.

Eligibility:

The applicant must be from an ACGME- or AOA-approved training program in cardiology.

The ACCF/BMS Travel Awards are generally intended for, but not restricted to, trainees beyond their first year in a cardiovascular-related subspecialty training program;

There will be no more than one award to any single training program in a given year;

Only one applicant from the training program may apply; and Nominees may also be entrants in the Young Investigators Awards competition. However, if the nominee is named as a Young Investigators Awards finalist, he or she will be ineligible to receive an ACCF/BMS Travel Award. Previous travel award winners will not be considered.

The Award: Travel expenses to the ACC's Annual Scientific Session, not exceeding $1,250 will be reimbursed for the awardees coach airfare, accommodations, and meals.
