Student Poster Contest: Health Informatics: International Perspectives

February 24 – 27, 2011 Inn at Laurel Point, Victoria, BC, Canada

An international conference addressing Information Technology and Communications in Health (ITCH)

Information Technology and Communications in Health (ITCH) conferences have made it a tradition to provide students with the opportunity to present their work, to exchange ideas and research results with each other and with health care, informatics and computer professionals. Poster content can be based on course work, co-op experience, literature reviews or research.

Students registered full-time in related undergraduate or graduate programs are invited to take part in a student poster contest. An independent panel will judge the posters. First, second and third place winners will receive cash prizes ($500, $300 and $200) and a complimentary FULL registration to the conference. Only the lead author on a team poster will receive the cash prize and complimentary registration.

Deadline for the Student Poster Contest: November 1, 2010.

Student submissions should address the role of information technology and communications in one of the following areas:

Health Informatics in Developing Countries

Initiatives in International Health Informatics

National & International Strategies and Policies

Health Records

Nursing Informatics

Technologies as Agents of Change

Informatics in Primary Care

Public Health Informatics

Ethics and Privacy

Safety and Quality Management

Mobile Technologies and Telehealth

Clinical Informatics

Human-Computer Interaction

Standardization and Interoperability

E-Learning and Education

Consumer Informatics
Healthcare Modeling and Simulation

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS and DEADLINES

An abstract, no longer than 500 words, that describes each poster presentation must be submitted for review by November 1, 2010.
