

American Physiological Society Teaching Career Enhancement Awards

Grantor: American Physiological Society

Closes: 9/15/2010

Maximum: $4,000.00

American Physiological Society Teaching Career Enhancement Awards

Award: Up to $4,000

Contact: Executive Office

Deadline: September 15

The APS Teaching Career Enhancement Award is designed to enhance the career potential of regular members. The award provides up to $4,000 to allow an individual to develop innovative and potentially widely applicable programs for teaching and learning physiology. The award can be used to support short-term visits to other schools to consult with experts who can assist with the development project. It can also be used to support attendance at special courses devoted to methodologies appropriate for the educational development project. The award does not include any indirect cost reimbursement.

To Apply: Go to <http://www.the-aps.org/awardapps> for online application (paper applications no longer accepted).
