

Call for Applications: 2012/13 Visiting Scholar Program at the University of Colorado Population Center

Grantor: University of Colorado Population Center

Closes: 3/1/2012

Maximum: $0.00

Call for Applications: 2012/13 Visiting Scholar Program at the University of Colorado Population Center

The University of Colorado Population Center at Boulder invites applications for a 2012-2013 Visiting Scholar Program that will help support a semester or year-long visit to Boulder, the university, and center. The program invites applications from national and international population scholars with interests in our signature themes – health and mortality, migration and population distribution, and environmental demography – and the desire to participate in center activities and perhaps collaborate with center affiliates. The center is part of the interdisciplinary Population Program and Institute of Behavioral Science. For questions or to express interest, please contact Rajshree Shrestha (Rajshree.Shrestha@Colorado.Edu). For applications, please submit to the same email address a one-page summary of research interests, a CV, and desired period of visit. The deadline for applications is 1 March 2012. The type and amount of financial support will be negotiated as part of the visitor offer. For more information, see <http://www.colorado.edu/ibs/pop>.

Link: <http://www.populationenvironmentresearch.org/whatsnew.jsp#F20110703>