Call for Nominations: American Society of Human Genetics Allan Award

The Allan Award, the major award given by The American Society of Human Genetics, was established in 1961 in memory of William Allan (1881-1943), who was one of the first American physicians to conduct extensive research in human genetics. The Allan Award is presented annually to recognize substantial and far-reaching scientific contributions to human genetics, carried out over a sustained period of scientific inquiry and productivity. It consists of an engraved medal and an award of $10,000 presented at the Annual Meeting. The award is given yearly but can be omitted in any given year at the discretion of the Board. The winner presents a 30-45 minute address to the ASHG meeting participants, and it is customary to submit a manuscript of his/her presentation to The American Journal of Human Genetics. The presentation of the award is not contingent upon the address and submission of a manuscript. Nominations will be solicited from committee members and the general membership.

All award nominations must be submitted online. Please note that posthumous nominations will not be accepted. If you have any other specific questions regarding ASHG awards, please direct them to klong@ashg.org.
